What is Palm Oil?

FRUIT OF THE OIL PALM

---

SIX .

Palm Oil is made from the fruits of the oil palm. In 2017, Oil palm plantations cover around 11.9 million hectares in Indonesia. The production of palm oil has a major impact on global greenhouse gas emissions, especially when grown on peat swamp forests - carbon sinks that release huge amounts of carbon dioxide and methane when cleared.

Boycott? No, palm oil is one of the least land-intensive crop and yields 5 to 8 times more oil than other oil crops. Thus, boycotting palm oil may instead result in more land being cleared for other crops.

In Singapore, palm oil is everywhere. It is found in our household products and in the food we eat. More than 90% of local chain restaurants use palm oil. We know this through our 2016 survey covering 362 outlets from 33 restaurant chains. This high demand may lead to an uncontrolled expansion of palm oil plantations and contribute to the transboundary haze problem in Singapore, which is why, as consumers, we must help prevent haze by choosing Haze-Free products.

Roundtable of Sustainable Palm Oil

The different types of RSPO-certified palm oil are:

1. Identity Preserved (IP)

Certified palm oil can be traced back to a single RSPO-certified mill.

1. Segregated (SG)

Certified palm oil is kept separate from non-certified palm oil throughout the supply chain.

2. Mass Balance (MB)

Mixing of certified and non-certified palm oil is allowed but an e-Trace system ensures that in the end product, the amount of palm oil sold as certified palm oil equals the amount of certified palm oil produced.

RSPO-certified oil are grown on Haze-Free palm oil plantations that:

- Use zero-burning methods to clear land
- Respect the land rights of locals and work with local communities to minimise the use of fires
- Protect forests and plant on open land
- Avoid new planting on peat and properly manage water level in existing plantations on peat
- Have sufficient manpower and equipment to detect and stop fires easily

RSPO (Roundtable of Sustainable Palm Oil) is a non-profit organisation launched in 2004. The RSPO unites stakeholders from the palm oil industry, such as oil palm producers, consumer goods manufacturers, and NGOs, to develop and implement international standards for Haze-Free palm oil. As of June 2020, RSPO certifies 19% of global palm oil.
